SUNDAY AT ASHLAND.

The Wholesale Arrest of Subbath Day Baseball Players.

The Navies of Cincinnati and the Local baseball players of Boyd county had arranged to play a game of ball Sunday at Cliffside Park.

Excursions were run from the near-by towns on the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad, and when time was called for playing ball fully five thousand people were on the grounds, with two brass bands, including the Second Regiment Band from Huntington.

BRICK STREETS. To any one who has visited cities where brick streets have been constructed the fact to have them at once declare in But, as there are many persons who have not had the opportunity to see and examine streets of this kind, it may be necessary to say a few words. In the first place, under the present system of macadamized streets it is just simply a continued round of hauling stone on the streets and, in a few days, hauling the resultant mud and dirt away, which is occasioned by the grinding up hauling going on. While it is true that it is much better to have this than to have streets without anything, yet, in this day of improvement, all the cities have been making experiments to arrive at the very best materral with which to construct their streets. due regard being had to economy and durability. The almost unanimous sentiment is that the brick street is the very best that has so far been tried.

The cost of construction in the last four years has fallen at least one-third. and that brings it within the possibility of cities of our class.

Our streets cost, for the fiscal year ending June 1st, 1895, close to $8,000, and that too, with but very little benefit. Now why not let the City Council arrange to build so much brick street out of the bulk of this money, which is expended

In the course of a few years most if not all the streets of our city would be thoroughly reconstructed with this elegant and lasting material. When once this is done, but very little repairing will need to be done for many years.

Brick streets add to the health and cleanliness of any city that has them. When it rains they wash off perfectly clean, and there is no resultant mud to haul away. When it is dry there is, comis can be readily gotten rid of by the use of the sprinkling hose. Ordinarily in the portion of the city not much traveled, and residence portions, the rains keep the streets well cleaned.

The writer has seen streets of this kind in use in many of the principal cities of and on May 1st will commence to run this country, as far West even as Lincoln, Neb., and nowhere did he hear a word Toledo. If you are traveling between said against them. They add materially the above points, take advantage of a to the appearance of a city, doing away with mud and dirt, and giving everything a tidy look.
